

5 reasons you should go cloud-managed

In comparison to a lot of technology tools in the modern business, networking infrastructure is often an afterthought. However, the increase in mobile devices, IoT capable devices and cloud applications means you need powerful and reliable network connectivity. But what does that look like?

With a cloud-managed network from Cisco Meraki, there are 5 key benefits you can leverage.

Centralised Management

Cloud-based management provides centralised visibility and control across your entire network through a single dashboard, eliminating the associated cost and complexity of wireless controllers or overlay management systems.

Location Analytics

Leverage actionable insights from users and their devices as a means of differentiating yourself from your competitors. Analytics tools are built directly into Meraki Access Points (AP's) which are then sent to the dashboard. View visitor traffic trends, dwell time, and new vs. repeat visitor loyalty.

Comprehensive Security

Courtesy of a holistic view of your network, administrators can block, shape, or whitelist activity to optimise performance. To mitigate risk, threat definitions and filter lists are regularly updated to keep your network secure.

Application Visibility

The analytics tools enable the creation of access control and application usage policies. For example, you can limit Facebook's bandwidth to instead upscale the available bandwidth for your CRM to deliver higher levels of quality, optimising your productivity and end-user experience. operations and puts intuitive tools in your hands.

Simplicity

IT needs to be a business enabler, developing innovative initiatives that improve the organisation. So, spending considerable time managing a network isn't feasible. A cloud-managed network greatly simplifies day to day operations and puts intuitive tools in your hands.

Computer Merchants is proud to partner with Cisco Meraki and bring cloud-managed network technologies to your organisation, providing a reliable, and secure network that will deliver your organisation with the power to not only handle demand, but drive growth and the user experience.

To speak with an expert, give us a call on 1800 777 111, or visit computermerchants.com.au